Eva Heidbreder is professor in "Multilevel Governance in Europe" at the Otto von Guericke University of Magdeburg. Since 2022 she holds a Jean Monnet Chair, funded by the European Commission.

Previous positions include a junior professorship at the Heinrich Heine University Düsseldorf, where she also completed her Habilitation. She held visiting professorships at the University of Konstanz, the Humboldt University as well as the Freie Universität Berlin. After completing her PhD at the European University Institute in Florence, she held post-doc positions at the Freie Universität and the Hertie School of Governance in Berlin. She completed a MA in Modern European Studies at the University of North London, a Magister in European Studies at the University of Osnabrück, as well as a post-graduate diploma in the same field at the Institute for Advanced Studies in Vienna.

Her research foci comprise topics such as effective and legitimate governance in the EU, horizontal implementation networks in EU policy-making, civil society involvement, including such concrete research questions as the negotiating process of the British EU exit. She is co-speaker of various sections or working groups in national and international professional organizations, including the International Political Science Association (IPSA), the European Group for Public Administration (EGPA) and the German Association for Political Science (DVPW, elected member of executive board 2018-2021).

Eva Heidbreder directs the BA and MA European Studies at the OVGU. As part of the curricula, students are offered opportunities for international encounters and an exchange with practitioners in field trips or special lectures. She gives regular lectures in Germany and abroad in order to promote the wider field of political education and dialogue.
